MELBOURNE – The move to get rid of the F-111s ech oes the man tra that "no threat will ex ist to Aus tra lia for the next 10-15 years". In effect, this ar gu ment bets the farm on the near re gion remaining stable, cohesive and aligned with Aus tra lia – a re mark able con clu sion given what we ob serve on tele vi sion daily.

Australia will run a serious risk if it re tires the F-111 with out a credible replacement capability.

The cen tral is sue, aside from the militant, Is lamic terror movement, is the prolifer a tion of advanced Rus sian mis sile and fighter technology.

These are considerations distinct from the "bread and but ter" is sue of providing diggers on the ground with sustain ableprecision heavy fire support in any Timor-like regional contingency or any larger oper a tion to root out ter ror ists in the region—a theme repeatedly raised by Cabi net last

Storm clouds over the force horizon

Spear heading the threat to Austra lia's regional position are the superb, 750-nautical mile ra dius Sukhoi Su-30 Flanker fight ers, Rus sia's equivalent to the Boeing F-15E/K mod els. With buddy re fa el ling, it is ca pa ble of cross ing the sea-air gap.

The Su-30s now being sold in Asia are like the ad vanced Su-35+ and Su-37 fight ers, most us ing 2D thrust vectoring, ca nards, phased arrayra dars and West ern avi on ics.

Global Hawk OK for airspace

SAN DIEGO – As Northrop Grumman's Global Hawk UAV enters first phase commercial production, the FAA has granted a Certificate of Authorisation to USAF to fly the RQ-4 Global Hawk in national air space. The certificate is the first US COA granted for an unmanned air system.

The high altitude, long endurance Global Hawk has been fly ing in restricted air space during take-off and land ing be fore quickly as cend-ing to all titudes high above commercial air traffic. The COA paves the way for it to support home land defence missions in national air space.

Virgin gets its very own 737

BRISBANE – Virgin Blue Airlines has taken de liv ery of its first owned aircraft, a US$62 million Boeing 737-800 de liv ered from Seattle.

The aircraft arrived in Australia af ter a brief stop-over in New Zealand where it re ceived its winglets.

Virgin will buy an other nine aircraft over the next 12 months.

Virgin Blue secured the finane ing through the Royal Bank of Scotland, with support from the US Import/Export Bank.

Chief Executive Brett Godfrey said the financed purchase "balances our fleet of leased and owned aircraft".

Virgin Blue's existing fleet is leased through various lessors, including Boullion, CIT, GECAS, ILFC and Tombo. The arrival of the first owned air craft takes the fleet to 32.

(Contd) Why RAAF must have the F-111s

The Sukhois can be used as bomb ers, armed with stand off weap ons equiv a lent to the AGM-142 - such as the Raduga Kh-59M, TV guided bombs like the GNPP KAB-500/1500Kr, Har poon clone anti-ship mis siles like the Zvezda Kh-35U, and the unique Zvezda Kh-31 Kryp ton long-range, ram jet anti-radiation mis siles. It can also carry the mas sive, su personic, sea-skimming Raduga Kh-41 Moskit/Sun burn and MBRPA Kh-61 Yakhont anti-shipping mis-

Thus Su-30s can pro vide ro bust pre ci sion strike, de fence suppression and sea con trol.

China is build ing up a force of 350 - pos si bly up to 500 Sukhois ri val ling the USAF F-15 fleet. In dia has or dered almost 200.

Closer to home, Ma lay sia has or dered 18 Su-30MKMs and In done sia four Su-30KIs, a lead-in batch for a planned TNI-AU fighter fleet of about 50 Sukhois.

Rus sian sources claim Ja karta also is shop ping for the S-300PMU/SA-10E/SA-20 Grum ble sur face-to-air mis sile sys teman is sue in its own right.

The acquisition of advanced weap ons by mar gin ally sta ble na tions like Indonesia should be of gen u ine con cern; even more so, the staggering num bers being purchased by China.

Threatre quires both capability and intent. His torically Australia has had the tech ni cal edge and capa bil ity has been lacking. This is all changing now.

Given that the F-111 is the only ADF as set capable of out ranging the Sukhoi fighter and has the terrain-following ra dar to evade advanced SAMs, pru dent stra te gic planning requires keeping the F-111s in ser vice for as long as pos si ble as in sur ance against po lit ical in stability in a neighbour hood arm ing with top-tier weap ons.

To base long term force structuring decisions on the prem ise that the in sta bil ity in the near re gion will soon sub side is sim ply not rational. The argument that broader PacRim strategiccircum stances do not jus tify re tain ing the F-111 is also not ra tio nal.

Taipei makes sub payment

TAIPEI – Taiwan has kickstarted its plan to ac quire eight con ventional submarines from the United States with US$3 mil lion and will make another $7.5 pay ment shortly. The US originally wanted Tai wan to make a $333 million advance.

The hefty down-payment de mand drew complaints from Taipei, prompting reports that the plan could be killed or Tai wan could opt for second-hand sub marines from the internationalmarket.

In Oc to ber Washing ton will brief Tai pei on the avail able sub ma rines.

The US Navy has briefed four US companies that have the capability to bid as prime contractors, although only Northrop Grumman and General Dy nam ics are ex pected to bid.

But the United States has not built re signed his post. conventional submarines for more than 40 years and de signing an entirely new one would be prohibi tively expensive without foreign participation.

Taiwan navy's submarine fleet consists of two 50-year-old Guppy-class diesel-electric boats, which are both in very poor condition, and two Dutch Hai-Lung-class boats com mis sioned in 1987/88.
